

Specification of subjects in Master's degree studies studies

Subject code: MIII2102
Study program: Forestry
Type and level of studies: Master's degree studies
Subject name: Forest biomass for energy
Teacher (s): Milorad Danilović, DSc; Slavica J. Antonić
Subject type: compulsory
ECTS: 7
Condition: no condition
Subject aim: Providing the necessary technical, technological, organizational, economic and other professional knowledge in the field of using forest biomass for energy. In addition, the objective is to highlight the importance of using renewable energy sources through this subject, among which wood has a very important role.
Subject outcomes: The student will be able to independently make planning decisions of key importance for selecting the appropriate technology and planning production in the use of forest biomass for energy in forests of different purposes.