

Specification of subjects in Master's degree studies studies

Subject code: MIII7101
Study program: Forestry
Type and level of studies: Master's degree studies
Subject name: Research methods and techniques in forest economics and organization
Teacher (s): Dragan Nonić, DSc; Ljiljana Keča, DSc
Subject type: compulsory
ECTS: 3
Condition: That the student enrolled in the master's degree study program – Forest policy, economics and organization of forestry and forest products trade
Subject aim: The main aim of the course is to enable the students to master the basic methods and techniques of research work in order to successfully solve professional problems and participate in the development of professional and scientific-research projects.
Subject outcomes: In addition to the general knowledge of the methodology of work, a special aspect of methodological preparation is education in the direction of mastering mathematical-statistical methods in a narrow scientific field.