

Specification of subjects in undergraduate studies

Study program: Forestry
Subject code: III3631
Type and level of studies: undergraduate studies
Subject name: Forest entomology
Teacher (s): Čedomir M. Marković, DSc; Jovan Dobrosavljević
Subject type: compulsory
ECTS: 7
Condition: That the student passed the exams in Forest botany, Genetics and Dendrology.
Subject aim: The Forest Entomology course aims to introduce students the basic morphological and anatomical characteristics of insects, their propagation and development, ways of damaging plants, types of damage, basics of classification and measures of fighting against the most important harmful species in order to protect forest ecosystems and increase the production of quality wood.
Subject outcomes: Students' ability to recognize the most important harmful forest insects and recommend appropriate measures for their suppression.